

DEAR ROBERT...

A Letter to a friend.

There are, who knows, how many religions there is in existence. They all serve a purpose. I have in the past referred to religion as a necessary evil. To day however I have a little better understanding of things. Each and every one of us on the planet is walking in the light we have received. The amount of light we have received depends on the level of our evolution. We can know a lot but ego knowledge changes no one.

Some, {as we look out at the world} are apparently in total darkness, and disconnected from their source. We have, on different occasions talked of the bible in terms of it not all being infallible. We may not be able to agree one hundred percent on what is the truth and what isn't, but we do agree that portions of it aren't.

There are many things I do take as Gods word, such as the verse that says, "God is light" another is, "God is love" since we know God is light and love, we know that people who are out there killing others for example are without God and in total darkness. They are the form of God, they are Gods image, but they are not yet spiritually based, they are disconnected from their source. NO one who's had a has reconnected would ever take a life. Religion is often mans first step after enlightenment. It's a step up after enlightenment. At one stage of our growth we gyrate to the religion that is compatible with where we are in consciousness.

The light that came from within us that created whatever change we experienced, leads us according to our basic understanding of God. From that point on, religion becomes our main influence. I must first learn what God is not, before I can learn what God is. Religion helps us because the result of religion is; we learn what God is not. Jesus is recorded as saying, "I and my father are one." we know that what was true of Jesus is also true of us. We are all one with the Father. In terms of oneness, there is one Spirit and as man we all have it, for it is the root, the core of all creation.

We spoke of the crucifixion Saturday at Denny's. I said that the real crucifixion took place in God before anything was created, and that the travailing in birth to bring forth Gods idea, which was creation, took place then. So the principle of the cross was in place when man came on the scene at the dawn of creation. It was the cross that Israel experienced when they were slaves in Egypt, and it was that same cross they experienced in the wilderness.

When Jehovah gave Moses the Ten Commandments those Ten Commandments created the cross for Israel. They experienced the cross right and left. So, the result of God travailing in birth brought forth an infinite number of souls of which I am one. We are extensions of the Father. We are each a form that God took when souls were created. Soul is Spirit stepped down, a lowering of the one Spirits vibration. The travailing that was experienced, as God was experiencing birth pains to bring forth his idea, resulted in the one Spirit fragmenting itself. Thus, the Big Bang. I, as a soul am one of those fragments. This means that the Father and I are one. Paul exhorted the Ephesians to "keep the unity of the Spirit in the uniting bond of peace." Where the problem comes in is, we do not know who we are.

Knowing who we are will always create oneness and unity among men. To come to the knowledge of God is to remember who we are, for we have forgotten. I believe we come into this life with the knowledge of who we are, but long before we are able to speak we have forgotten. We, I believe cannot really come into real spiritual oneness before we remember who we are. At best we only can come to a oneness in teaching or doctrine but not real unity of the Spirit. As good as the move we were in was we eventually lost the unity.

This is why it was doomed to fail sooner or later. Our leader did not see these things. He was correct on the doctrine of the church, according to scripture, but wrong in attitude, because he himself was not broken and so touched the ark, and we followed suit and so even the oneness we had, was ultimately lost. By the time any soul begins to grasp the truth about who it is, it has no probablen with others, regardless of where they are on the spiritual path. Jesus knew who he was; his attitude was... if you accept me just as I am that's great, if you don't that's ok too.

When I know who I am I will never attempt to vindicate my position anytime, to anyone. The mind of the average man cannot ever grasp oneness. The reason is, the ego is programmed to duality. The concept of oneness is one of those things where we say if you don't know, I cannot tell you. Jesus according to the four gospels taught on two levels. He sometimes spoke from his humanity and other times spoke from the first person or his greater identity.

For example he said "he that has seen me has seen the Father." obviously he spoke of the first person then, while in the garden he spoke from his humanity and said "Father, if it be thy will, let this cup pass from me, nevertheless not my will but thine be done." as for oneness, the light will ultimately bring all men into oneness, for that light desires full expression and as we remember who we are we unite with all men. LIGHT UTTERLY DESTROYS ALL DIVISION. I cannot love my neighbor as myself until I see him as myself.

My neighbor is a reflection, an extension of me. At the very core of my being is an exhaustless spring of living water which is able to answer any questions I can possibility come up with. The knowledge of God is waiting there to reveal to me, who and what I am. Deep within every man is the knowledge that will enable him to do, be, or have anything he could ever desire. This wisdom is beginning to flood the earth and this is the coming of the cosmic mind or as some say, the coming of Christ.

God is a matrix everything is connected. All souls have the one universal Spirit as their root. So all men really are created equal. Since all are connected by this same Spirit, the more we grow into maturity, the more we shall become not only what we have always been since we first became a soul but much, more.
