

EVIL...

Even though I know that evil is only in the mind of he who beholds it in the moment or at any given time, I cannot deny it's reality in this reality. None of us can de-program ourselves from that which our God given five senses has been programmed with. We only need come to where we understand that we, as a five sense man are caught as it were in a world of illusion that we've created for our expansion.

The realization of these things will grow in me as I expect them to, and wait with patience for the real identity, that greater part of by being to surface, bringing with it the truth and to drop a greater reality into my heart of hearts.

The five sense man I spoke of here is referring to the unenlightened man. He can be both the real man, and the illusionary man, depending on ones perspective.

Using the eye that sees only one, he is an illusion. From the ego's perspective he is very real. What we think of as the dream world is a real parallel to this world that we live in today. When my body sleeps at night and I dream, the dream is sometimes whacky, crazy, bazaar and mixed up. Yet, when I am dreaming all seems perfectly normal. When and if however my dream is remembered upon awakening, I say "whew! That was a dream that made no sense", and it didn't once I awoke, because the dream was on a level of consciousness other then the frequency I am on upon awakening.

The one universal spirit that is our real identity doesn't operate on the same level of consciousness that we normally do. The more we grow, the more we find ourselves being lifted out of the relative world of good and evil, which corresponds to the dream world and lifted into a place where we now have the ability to see from either perspective.

Being able to see from both perspectives is important in terms of being able to share what I see with others. This is an advantage that helps me in relating to others in a way that they can more easily identify with. So again, you are right if you say "we are not caught" if the "we" you speak of is the greater I. our greater I is the one that created the illusion for its expansion. The first one I speak of here is the dreaming five sense man. The last one I mention is the one who stands outside the illusion it has created for the expansion
