

GENERATING HOPE...

Here is something that many do not realize. Individually I create my own personal reality. Granted until I become an enlightened being, the reality I create for myself is very much due to the influence of my culture's mass consciousness, and yet the bottom line is, that I alone create my reality. I alone create what is real to me.

One of the plus's of absorbing truth into my three dimensional consciousness {Little ego} is that less and less I am influenced by outward data that comes to me through the five senses and more and more I began to recognize the true teacher within me as forth dimensional consciousness is being formed within. What is happening here is that the "little ego" is beginning to mingle and merge with the greater ego {my soul}

So it is I who create my personal reality. In this sense it would be true to say that I create my world. I agree with Abraham when they said "there are as many worlds as there are perceivers." In terms of the planet however, it is mass consciousness that creates the planet as we know it. Every soul that is here at any given time all are omitting the energy that has, is, and will continue to create the world we all are a part of.

I listen to any message that resonates with me when it comes to messages that are channeled. But here is something I don't believe very many are aware of in this "extraterrestrial" phenomenon we are dealing with today. Whether these Beings are truly extraterrestrials' or inner dimensional doesn't really matter. It is their message that is doing a tremendous amount of good for the planet. Here's why. Hope is a very precious commodity today.

Hope is desperately needed for our planets ascension. It is needed for so very many who are suffering beneath the load of anxiety concerning many things today. There are enough light beings on this earth today to quickly turn things completely around except for one little problem. Many of them have also forgotten why they came onto the planet and consequently who they are. They are sleeping like so many others. There are many of us who do remember, and it is we who have the desire to awaken all that are sleeping.

The law of attraction will lead us to the sleeping light workers who are near to becoming lucid. In the meantime, the messages that are being channeled are for the purpose of creating hope within the masses. What is their purpose for their desire that we have hope as opposed to despair? It is because they are advanced in knowledge and therefore know that hope growing in a number of the people will definitely raise the vibrations of the planet. As more and more people experience hope those vibrations will greatly affect everything.

The dark energies that have created the world situation we have today, are losing ground because of the internet which is being used by those of us who are lucid; to share their light and it is spreading hope and faith around the world. So we are then doing our part while the extraterrestrials or inner dimensionals are doing theirs. It really doesn't matter who they are, whether extra terrestrials or inner dimensionals Galactic Federation or Hogan's hero's. It's the effect or their message that is important.

As the hope that is being generated from these channeled messages combined with the light we are sharing takes hold, we are going to see strong evidence that the "Golden Age" is within our reach. My reason for sharing this message is to say that while many of us are wary of all these messages that are being channeled, and that are coming at us we need to stand back and perhaps reconsider if we are concerned that they are not benevolent. Light beings will never instill fear but will always share in a way that builds hope.

It is the dark energies that always work to instill fear. That is their M.O., {Method of operation} It is one of their main tools to control the masses. Whoever the beings are that are speaking to us through different mediums, I personally believe they are benevolent. They could very well be our future selves here to assist us in ascension. The things I have shared here are my personal feelings concerning who they may be. As for the principle of hope they are generating that is fixed. Hope is a high vibration and it often times transmutes into faith.

There has been much prayer from multitudes of people asking God to intervene concerning the world's many problems. Who's to say that the messages we're getting from another dimension is not an answer to those prayers? There's a great need for hope in the world we live in today. The messages being channeled are generating a lot of it as the messages resonate with the people. Even should these messages turn out to be a hoax, the joke would be on the hoaxers because of the raising of the vibratory rate of the planet because of them.

Personally I see no hoax, but an answer to the prayers of many.
