

LETTER TO SAM...

The energy field....

I want you to know that whatever I may share now or in the future I share it because it is the way I see it. Veils are consistently being removed as we walk this eternal journey. This means that whatever I see today may change in appearance tomorrow. There is no end to the journey we're on and our vision will continue to change and we will have to re-focus periodically as the journey unfolds.

What I am saying is this. To be dogmatic is evidence that ego is reigning in place of spirit. I'm using the term "spirit" here interchangeably with "soul" Both are the same, yet they are not. The soul is spirit stepped down in vibration, but the soul's essence is still Spirit. Spirit Consciousness is the highest Consciousness in existence and is one with all that is.

The physical man is soul vibration stepped down yet another notch. Each lower stage of vibration guarantees a certain amount of loss, but all "loss" is temporary, for ultimately what is gained could never be compared to what was lost. Creation is a result of Spirit lowering it's vibration and that lowering caused what we often refer to as the Big Bang, the divine shattering and fragmenting of Creative Energy.

So I'd like to believe that I've come to that place where I am perfectly content to allow all others to be who they are. I do believe I have, but then who really knows? God may know but if he does, he's not talking. Concerning the idea of the Indefinable Absolute Source of all that is as an "Energy Field" that was not in itself conscious, and that creations consciousness is the medium through which this Energy creates, is an idea totally outside of any human intelligence to fathom. Obviously mine included.

Perhaps this is one reason I would not take issue with anyone who would oppose this idea. I cannot explain why it is that this concept is attractive to me, but perhaps it's because I have seen what man's concept of a personal deity or God as a person has done to create so much division in the earth. Each culture has created its own version of God as it sees God. It's common to view the creator as an entity that is separate from them. Along with this they invariably project their own limitations on the God they see.

We as a whole people are very much lost in the duality we have created. We are prone to judging everything as good or evil. Consequently we see God as one who does the same. Duality gives us a sense of right and wrong, thus we have created a God who will judge man by this same standard. Thus as that old saying goes, we have created a God in our own image. The dark energies have assisted man in his creation of this tribal God.

If one says that God is not a personal God this is highly offensive to anyone who has one. I don't say that God cannot be personal to me or you. I only say that God is not a person in the form of any divine deity. I do say that God is personified in creation. It is as creation that this Creative Energy takes on personality. The creator is my person and your person and every other person that exists. Ron and Sam are only two of the masks God is wearing today. The New Testament teaches me that the eternal Christ is my life.

Perhaps one of the reasons we are here, is because God desired to experience being a person. I know that this one, who generates Love in us, desires very much that we come to know creation as his appearing. I truly have never been able to conceive of this ever happening as long as we know a God that was before and after and beyond creation. For me, this speaks of two. Me and one who was before me and who is above and beyond me. I am subject to error because I'm human today, but I cannot conceive of anything in existence before God or after God, but God.

Neither can I conceive of ever coming to love my neighbor as myself as long as I see God as being above him. I must see only God as I look at him, and I must know at my deepest level that God and I are equals. I believe this is what the divine mind would desire to bring me to. I need to come to where I know of no one greater than my neighbor because I know him/her as an appearance of that which created me and is me at a deeper level. Am I wrong in the way I see this? That is a possibility, for I must confess to you that I have been wrong before.

I will say that I feel that I need to be bold and throw caution to the wind and share all that I see to all that are open and let all the chips fall where they may. In doing this the stream of light that is coming to me will eventually be cleared of all impurities of the three dimensional consciousness. The ego has fears of losing its face and of being found to be wrong and many times for this reason it will withhold light for fear of being wrong.

It will then use the excuse of not wanting to miss represent God etc. The one who is real however will stand in opposition to any ego driven desire to hide under a spirituality that it imagines it has acquired and will desire to be what it is, be that right, wrong, or indifferent. I truly love your attitude Sam, concerning things that do not resonate with you. You are not quick to form opinions. God has been your friend in terms of giving you his spirit.
