

THE DIVINE MATRIX...

Answer to the question of a friend...

Statement made...

To walk down any street anywhere knowing that somewhere inside me that this "here and now" is merely a dream, results in the dream becoming far more vivid and colorful. It's like world that was flat suddenly becomes alive in wonderful living color.

Question...

Can you explain why a world that is fading from view became more colorful to you?

That happened to me only once about three months ago. We create our own reality. The five sense man {little ego} and the soul of the man [the greater ego] are one during any life cycle here. When this happened to me it was a moment of exceptional clarity wherein I became acutely aware of the privilege it was to be partaking of this beautiful place we know as earth, to be partaking of physical reality, to be having the experience of flesh and therefore able to partake of so much that the five senses have to offer.

It was a moment of extreme lucidity wherein I knew at deeper level that what I was experiencing was a dream. Once I became fully awake the beauty of earth life experience appeared within my consciousness. This was a confirmation to me that that my five sense man is for the most part unconscious in comparison to what the world that I am creating is really like. This was a version of the new earth that we all are creating even as I type this to you.

After all... all reality that I experience or have ever experienced was and is created by me. There is a collective consciousness wherein all are creating the same basic reality {according to the spiritual orbit they are in} yet at the same time, no two realities will ever be experienced the exact same way. This way the Energy field, or source energy, or God, or prime creator, or All That Is, experiences all the riches of all the experiences of all its souls combined.

As one of these souls {at the individual level of consciousness} I have the growing potential to tap into any of the experiences that any other soul in this matrix of the infinite has experienced or is experiencing. All the knowledge that has ever been gleaned by any and every soul that is part of the matrix {they all are} whether mineral, vegetable, animal, human angelic, light or dark energies. All experiences that have ever been experienced by any living thing {all of creation is alive and vibrating with intelligence} are part of who I am.

To the degree that this reality settles into my awareness I will partake of all the riches of the prime Creator... for I am that as I dream of forgetfulness. All “illusions” dreams, etc. are a part of the “reality” and are a result of the creative ability that I possess. What is true of one... is true obviously for all.

...

Answer to the question of a friend...

Statement made...

To walk down any street anywhere knowing that somewhere inside me that this “here and now” is merely a dream, results in the dream becoming far more vivid and colorful. It's like world that was flat suddenly becomes alive in wonderful living color.

Question...

Can you explain why a world that is fading from view became more colorful to you?

That happened to me only once about three months ago. We create our own reality. The five sense man {little ego} and the soul of the man [the greater ego] are one during any life cycle here. When this happened to me it was a moment of exceptional clarity wherein I became acutely aware of the privilege it was to be partaking of this beautiful place we know as earth, to be partaking of physical reality, to be having the experience of flesh and therefore able to partake of so much that the five senses have to offer.

It was a moment of extreme lucidity wherein I knew at deeper level that what I was experiencing was a dream. Once I became fully awake the beauty of earth life experience appeared within my consciousness. This was a confirmation to me that that my five sense man is for the most part unconscious in comparison to what the world that I am creating is really like. This was a version of the new earth that we all are creating even as I type this to you.

After all... all reality that I experience or have ever experienced was and is created by me. There is a collective consciousness wherein all are creating the same basic reality {according to the spiritual orbit they are in} yet at the same time, no two realities will ever be experienced the exact same way. This way the Energy field, or source energy, or God, or prime creator, or All That Is, experiences all the riches of all the experiences of all its souls combined.

As one of these souls {at the individual level of consciousness} I have the growing potential to tap into any of the experiences that any other soul in this matrix of the infinite has experienced or is experiencing. All the knowledge that has ever been gleaned by any and every soul that is part of the matrix {they all are} whether mineral, vegetable, animal, human angelic, light or dark energies. All experiences that have ever been experienced by any living thing {all of creation is alive and vibrating with intelligence} are part of who I am.

To the degree that this reality settles into my awareness I will partake of all the riches of the prime Creator... for I am that as I dream of forgetfulness. All "illusions" dreams, etc. are a part of the "reality" and are a result of the creative ability that I possess. What is true of one... is true obviously for all.