

WHERE ALL THE ANSWERS ARE...

In these days we've got more information than we can handle. We've got opinions via the internet coming at us from all directions. There are some who say black and some who say white and many of these opinions are coming from credible people, people who are sincere in what they believe. We hear from those who say it's white and they are saying it the way they see it. Then we have others who are saying no, it's black, and they also are sincere and are telling things as they see them.

Also, usually both sides come across as very convincing. When any one of us speaks from a sincere place we are usually quite convincing. Then there are those of us who have come to realize that one who seems to us to be in error concerning their opinions but is convinced that their version of a thing is correct that the sincerity with which they speak can be very convincing. Today we have hundreds of different churches all meeting under different flags and most of them are led by sincere men who are convinced that their version of truth is correct.

So here I am, an innocent bystander diligently searching for the real truth. Then I'm hit with all these "sincere" opinions. And when I hear this one speak or read what they have written it really seems to resonate with me. But then all at once I happen on to another website and now this one is expressing opposing opinions from what I had begun to believe was right. Taking both at face value they both come across as very convincing. So... what is really happening here? If I'm one of these innocent "bystanders" then I need to realize that this scenario is very common.

What is going on is that my inner teacher/shepherd is sending me a message. What is this message? The message is... "you can only truly know what the truth is for you by learning to go within and shut the door, and listen for the still small voice to light up your path". It seems that we usually have to hear this exhortation to get the truth from within our own consciousness hundreds of times through our life until one day that particular information clicks/resonates with us. Now... when this resonates with me... until I finally get the message, I'll swing to and fro like the pendulum on a grandfathers clock as I first go with one opinion and then another one.

Now there's no condemnation in finding myself in this category. It's all a vital part of the learning process that we all go through. As for most that post here on H.T.H. you may be thinking, I know this, I've seen this quite some time ago, and for you this is not being written. This is for some of the ones who choose not to post here but often read the board and who sometimes find themselves in a quandary as to what to believe. These I would encourage to spend time getting quite in a quiet environment with the single intention of connecting with the mind that was in Christ Jesus and others of like mind who have come in the past to assist us in our journey back to our source.

This source, this Creator, this Mind is within all of its creation from the least to the greatest, man being the highest intelligence on this particular planet. In speaking of looking within our own being for answers, the magical word is "INTENTION". If I am willing to get in a quiet place with the "Intention" of touching/connecting with that source of creation/God, then I will undoubtedly get results. I only need a mustard seed of faith in doing this. If you will put forth the effort to do this, then that is all the faith required

Once you become familiar with this practice and with its benefits nothing can then ever snow you for long anymore. You will get confused from time to time as you look for answers as to what is really going on with this planet, but now you will know where to go for your answers as to which way to go concerning any information you get from the internet or anywhere else. The law of attraction will also be of assistance to you when you finally realize that your true sense of security comes from knowing that every answer you will ever need for any occasion can always be found within your own being.

There is so much light being beamed onto this planet today and it all is concerning our true identity. This light is utterly obliterating all the old paradigms of third density consciousness and bringing all who are ready for this change to an all new uplifted humanity. Those whose desire is to remain with the third dimensional consciousness may do so with no condemnation whatsoever. A request for such is not required.

If they are comfortable with third density consciousness this law will see to it that when the changes ultimately take place, they will ultimately find themselves in an environment that is conducive to their vibration rate. This is the construct of the nature of our God and our true Being. The law of attraction is never wrong; it cannot be for it is an all knowing law. This law will always bring me to the place in consciousness that I belong and one that is in sync with where I am on my journey back home. We all with no exceptions have the same destiny. This destiny could be told in a multitude of ways.

One way to say what our destiny is, would be that we will not throughout eternity ever know boredom again unless this would become our choice. We are about to step into a dimension where we find that all limitations that we have always known in third density consciousness is no longer a reality. Some of us have had and are familiar with what is known as lucid dreaming. Just in case some would be reading this that are not familiar with it I'll explain quickly here. Lucid dreaming is when you are dreaming at night when suddenly you come awake within your dream, you have full awareness that you are dreaming.

When this happens you are then aware that you can do things that you cannot do when you are awake, such as fly high above the treetops and so you do. My point is, in a lucid dream you find that many limitations are non existent. Incidentally this frequency, this level of consciousness is at least as real as the one I'm using to type this to you. The lucid dream is a very good likeness as to what I see fourth and fifth density consciousness will be in terms of freedom from duality's laws. These laws have served us well and they have brought us to the threshold of a whole new consciousness that is at present creating a whole new world.

So in closing, I would encourage all who read this that sometimes find themselves wondering who is right and who is wrong etc. to go to the one place where all the answers are... within your own being. your source does not deal in right or wrong but gives you light that you need for any given time. You are looking for answers or you would not be reading this. The answers... all of them are within you. When you get them from there, they are yours, they belong to you, and they then have been incorporated into your outer man as well. Then you know that you know. Words do not teach regardless of who they come from.

The word that speaks in silence from your heart as you learn to go within your own being, that word is the only word of god that I know of that is given to man. It was given at the beginning of his coming forth from the heart of God. It has always been present there; it's the gold at the end of the rainbow and the "treasure in the field". It is written... "You search the scriptures for in them you think you have eternal life but you will not come to me". Who here is this "me"? This "me" is that which created you as man, and as absolute truth this Creator is the you that desires to surface and will as your answers come from within.
