

WHO WAS JEHOVAH...?

A friend once sent me a book by a William Bramley, entitled "The Gods of Eden." For me, getting this particular book was very timely. I had, had a problem with the God of the Old Testament for years and so this book was especially interesting to me. In this book, Bramley says that Jehovah was a custodial God over Gods creation but that at some point became corrupted and power mad, etc.

Books are put in my path always just at the right time. This was one of them. With any book including the bible, I take anything and everything that I see as representing what I have seen God to be. I reject anything that to me misrepresents its nature, that nature being pure Love, the love that is wisdom and truth.

I understand much of the Old Testament and also portions of the new to be less than what I have learned God to be. Once you get a real handle on the Shepherd's teaching that comes only from within, it matters not if the whole world would attempt to convince you you're wrong, you realize you really have no choice in what you believe. Isn't that neat?

When a truth resonates within you it's yours! There was a time when we needed a tutor. We looked with respect on those who had the "credentials" that we believed were qualified to teach us, and we learned a lot when in this stage of growth. I learned when I was still a young Christian about what I'll call here the law of life, which is, "All life begets after its kind."

A peach tree begets peaches, an apple tree begets apples, and so on. If I am a teacher who functions at the level of law, then the students I attract will be ones who are in my spiritual orbit of law. This is as it should be. The woman who was instrumental in leading me to Jesus was very much in love with him. I had been raised in the church but at 32 years of age had not known anyone like this woman.

She had been frozen out of Christianity for many years when I met her. She had a word for them that they could not hear. It was her love and her reality of Jesus Christ that opened my own heart to him. So you might say that my beginning was from a ministry that was based on the love of God. I had spent an hour or two in her home listening to her speak of her different experiences of Jesus Christ.

The reality she ministered {dispensed} to me was a seed that broke ground the following day. It was the next day that Heaven came down and the glory of the living God totally filled my soul to overflowing and set me in Heavenly places for three months. I literally walked in glory for that long. Because of her deep love for the Lord, a deep work was done in my spirit. I realize that I'm no doubt telling some of your own stories, but that's ok.

Here's my point, God blessed me by getting me started on the right track. That "track" of course was his love. Today, whatever I hear, whatever I read, if it speaks to me of God's love, I buy it! To say this another way, if it expresses the God that has been revealed to me, I receive it. That's a given. If what I observe, read, or hear that doesn't represent the God that I've known, then I reject it, and that's also a given. This is not a matter of my will thank God!

The Spirit of the Creator is total Love. This love is his nature, it's what he/ she/It is! Jesus Christ as much as I love him, was not the unique Son of God. The Love that drove him was. The love that animated him was. The love that brought him to Calvary was. That which he was the embodiment of was. The life that animated him was. That very same life is that which beats my heart and yours.

There was only one difference between Jesus Christ and you and I, that difference was the revelation that was revealed to him over 33 three years of suffering. That suffering was mostly because what he saw put him at variance with the religion of his time. If people do not understand you because you speak in a new tongue, be thankful. God has blessed you with his knowledge, with his wisdom. You can't get that from bible school. It only comes from within.

When the gospel of Mark speaks of "new tongues" I cannot say what was in Mark's mind, or what his thought on that was. I do believe that there is a people coming up on the land even as I write this, that speak in new tongues. I read them everyday on H.T.H. not a day ever passes that I am not filled with gratitude that I read you and I understand you, and I love you more as I read. Hey... it's ok if only a few can speak your tongue.

You will develop a love for them that runs deeper than any other emotion that others call love. There is a bond that forms among those who delight themselves in the Lord, and this bond is one that you would give every drop of blood in your veins before you would surrender it for any reason. Again, not a matter of your will. I love you all. I send the only energy there is to all and in that energy is healing that destroys all lies.

I totally appreciate and am filled with gratitude that Gary told me about this website. I also thank everyone for the encouragement I have been given by you. Thank you so much for releasing the river of life that flows within us all. The word says "open your mouth and I will fill it" how very true. However, if I speak from the heart and find no encouragement the river tends to stop flowing. Thank you for helping me to release the flow.

Many blessings.
