

GOOD NEWS FOR EVERYONE...

The earth is at present ridding itself of third density consciousness. This is good news for many, and not bad news for anyone. This is not about any judgment by any outside God; it's about law of attraction balancing this galaxy. As an individual soul, I create my own reality. It would be safe to say that I represent a large growing number of souls that are waking up to the fact that very much of the reality that I have created up until now is because I have unwittingly allowed mass consciousness to influence my thinking thus joining it in creating much of what I have become very much opposed to.

I am as you are... opposed to poverty, disease, war, greed, etc and the list goes on and on. Because we are stirring from this stupor, this chaotic dream world that we have helped to create, we are now learning that to resist the negative vibrations will always bring into our lives more of the same. I am learning to divorce myself from being a participator to being simply an observer. Not making judgments, just observing. I know who I am; therefore I also know that anything I resist I give power to, by making it a reality. Especially do I refrain from judging what I observe are mistakes my ego/flesh makes, ego being the part of the physical that is still focused in third density consciousness.

The galaxy and of course mother earth, is ridding itself of third density consciousness by the steady acceleration of its vibrations. All who have awoken to a degree, and are vibrating at certain levels will go with the galaxy into higher consciousness. Geographically we are not going anywhere. The journey is not in space and time, but in consciousness. This whole cosmic game that we decided to play before we became the many, has always been in consciousness/Spirit. Nowhere else exists where it could have been. At the end of this cycle, all who are still on the planet will have undergone a quantum leap into a much higher level of consciousness. Others will have gone to a world that is fitting for their vibration rate.

As the old hymn goes..."I want to be in that number"... being an "observer" and not a "game player" is crucial to my desire becoming my reality. All those many incarnations as I soundly slept soundly in the great cosmic bed known as duality/dream consciousness, I was a game player. Once however I began to awaken, and realize that I was not only a dreamer but the dream weaver, I stopped playing the game I had created and became the observer. The observer and the dream weaver are the same. The dreamer and the game player are the same, and I have played both of those rolls.

Evolution in consciousness is only ever upwards and never does it digress as the dark energies would have us who are still sleeping soundly believe. Their primary agenda is fear, for fear is the most debilitating disempowering vibration there is. If they could keep one in fear eternally, then that one would forever be under their control. Fortunately this is not and never will be a possibility because no one can sleep forever and all will awaken in their own time. Anyone who is vibrating at a place where they would have little chance of staying on the earth when this soon coming shift takes place, would not be reading a message like this one. If you were not becoming lucid in this dream you would not be reading this.

Do not resist fear if it comes. Just observe it. Don't judge it, don't push against it or resist it, just observe it and see it for what it is, a tool used by the dark energies who have zero power over you unless you take their bait. I do not have all the answers and I find that a liberating experience. There is evidence on every hand that the rising of the earth's vibration is cleansing the earth of the lower vibrations. It is even on the news which is ironically the main tool for controlling mass consciousness. For all who have eyes to see the removing of third density consciousness is now on the go.

These are the days for turning inward to your higher self and listening for its guidance. It cannot fail to guide you if you sincerely look to it to do so. THAT IS LAW! I have noticed that quite a few who used to share here no longer do. Please do not wait until you got it "right" before you share with others what you have been given. just please share. It's the fastest way I know of to receive more depth and more articulation. The more you give the more comes to you. That is also law! Take a lesson from the stream... the more it flows the more it is purified, until all impurities have sank to the bottom and the stream is pure and crystal clear.

There is no "right" or "wrong" in sharing your heart... just share!! The bottom line that I would stress in closing is this...You create your own reality, so keep your focus on a positive level. This will be more challenging for some then others, but it's quite possible for all of us to do. Below is a link to an excellent video I have just watched. I see it as worthy of sharing with you all so I'll leave you with it.

<http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=gRTS-Zsd6ZM>