

THE PURPOSE OF CONSCIOUSNESS...

The purpose of consciousness is to create illusions and it's an extension of, and issues forth from Source energy, that which all religions refer to as God.

Everything reduced to its final beginning is this state of cosmic Being.

At this state there exists nothing but Being.

Man has, since he was formed, attempted to know who or what it is that created him.

At some point he learns that the one that did was this "Being" and that this one is his greater identity.

He learns that in a real sense his greater identity is sleeping and he is the dream it dreams.

He, after a very long cosmic day, which has taken many incarnations, finally realizes that everything that comprises the world he knows is the illusion that he alone is creating.

By this time he has long since stopped his infernal following John Smith's or Mary Ellen's version of truth, for he has at long last discovered that the only truth he can truly depend on is his own ray of light that shines out from the deepest recesses of his own being, that which is Source.

He has come to know that he is one of the many units of consciousness that was created for the purpose of creating his own unique illusion.

He has come to realize that all other unites of consciousness/egos that are separate from him are separate only in terms of the unique illusions they each create, are all one at the Source.

He has seen that at the level of source we all exist as the ONE.

This knowledge if still in the intellectual stage is a very good stage on the path.

It will however bring him/her security that creates profound peace, only as it gradually infiltrates, permeates, and saturates the more shallow levels of the awareness.
