

TWO TREES...

Because of what I am, I can be who I want to be. What am I...? I am spirit, therefore eternal immortal and indestructible. I am now and have always been in 100% in control of my destiny. Therefore, I can be whoever I desire to be. I can follow the path of darkness or I can choose to be a light being.

It is always my individual choice as to who or what I want to be. I am always in full control of all the experiences of life. I invariably lose "conscious" control when I take on the physical form but never do I lose any control. My power is never diminished when I become flesh. The reason I always lose my "conscious" control is because in descending onto a three dimensional plane I automatically incur amnesia.

This results in me forgetting that thoughts are creative and so my ignorance of this results in many miss creations. When I come forth into flesh, the only thing I lose in reality is memory. Hence it is as flesh that I am totally ignorant of the truth of my being. When I descend into physical matter that which religion speaks of as the "fall" happens all over again. It is at this time that I turn from the tree of life to the tree of knowledge.

There are two trees in the center of the Garden of Eden Genesis chapter two. One was the tree of life which answers to the spirit in man his life force, and the other is the tree of knowledge which answers to the intellect. As I descend into matter the fall scenario is enacted each time. I then become the man who must eat bread by the sweat of his brow. At this stage as man, I don't ask that the father give me my daily bread. Although I have become very limited due to my forgetting... in reality all I've lost is memory. I have lost no power to create.

I create 24/7 as man, but by default, due to losing all conscious connection to my Source. The human plane that I have entered outside the garden is programmed to believe in limitation. As man I believe I am limited therefore I am. When I spirit however can burst through the dense fog of mans dream so that he becomes lucid within his dream, the shackles began to fall off and the limitations fall by the wayside and as he awakens within his dream he finds the freedom he has desired.

It is then that all man made laws are under his feet. He now has merged with me the life force, his eternal source. He has always been complete but now he can taste the freedom of it. The two trees of Genesis chapter two are within man. He can always choose which tree is good for food. Upon his arrival here in third dimension he has no choice. He must eat from the tree of knowledge to survive on this physical plane. There is however good news... this tree will always ultimately bring him to the tree of life. He can then choose this to be his choice or not. He can always choose.
